> night a distressing accident occurred at the residence of Henry Brown, a prominent farmer, some miles in the country. He had been visited several times by burglars and he provided himself with revolvers against another coming. His domestic, a girl named Knaurer, had company, and after dismissing her visitor started through the room occupied by Brown and wife, to retire. Brown awakened suddenly and fired two shots at the supposed intruder. One of them penetrated the girl's breast, passing clear through the body, inflicting a wound from which she is not expected to recover. Brown is greatly prostrated with grief over the unfortunate affair, and his condition is nearly as serious as that of his victim.

FIRE ISLAND, N. Y., January 12 .- No further particulars of the foundering of the steamer Hylton Castle have yet been receive here. No person having come up from the Point of Woods' Life-Saving Station since Captain Miller sent up news of the landing of the first mate and nine of the crew of the steamer. Nothing has been heard of the second boat Nothing has been heard of the second boat containing Captain Calvin and the rest of the crew. It is thought they will, probably, reach the beach at some point farther east. No story of the wreek has as yet been obtained from the survivors, but it will probably be told to-night. The steamer evidently went down in deep water, as no sign of her masts can be seen with a glass from the Lighthouse here. The sea is light and the wind is not blowing very hard, and this gives rise to the hope that if Captain Calvin and his boat's crew are still afloat, they will reach the shore during the day.

THE REPUBLICAN OPPOSITION TO THE

WASHINGTON, D. O., January 13.—There could not have been a better test of the strength of the Republican opposition to Presidential appointments than was offered in the Senate yesterday afternoon, and, according to the best account obtainable of the business transacted, the Republican opposition is too much divided to be dignified by that name. Among the appointments reported that name. Among the appointments reported from committee was that of Dorman B. Eaton, each killed at the same time one mile west of this city last night at 11 o'clock by the Missouri Pacific St. Louis passenger train No. 45, west-bound. should have stood the best chance in the world of being rejected. Instead of this, however, there were, an enerly as can be ascertained, only fourteen votes against his confirmation, the opposition being equally divided between the two parties. The Democrats voted for his confirmation, doubtless out of respect to the President, their position being simplified by the fact that Mr. Eaton has announced that will resign February I. The Republican opposition, under Gen. Logan, mustered only seven votes. As a test, the vote

Bayard's Hatred of Curtin. By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 12.-All have wondered at Bayard's antipathy to Gov. Curtin, and been curious to learn the real reason. The true cause was given last evening to the Post-Disparch correspondent. CITY HALL NOTE.5.

The Rallroad Committee of the House of Delegates met this afternoon.

Major Foster, Secretary of the Board of Public Improvements, was confined to his home by illness to-day. His place on the board was taken by Mr. E. F. Finney.

Water in the reservoir is still failing. The gappy altogether amounts to about 30,000,000 galions now. There was a fall of 1½ feet fairing the might. If the latest cold wave reduction is true there will be a water famine. The Board of Public Improvements held an uniquortant meeting this morning. From the Albany Argus.
Thomas J. Cummins in build is nearly as heavy as Mr. Cleveland—or used to be before the President went to Washington. Short-sighted people and strangers very often mistook him for Governor Cleveland. One day Mr. Cummins sauntered into the chamber for news. This was after the Governor's election to the President on the chamber for news. This was after the Governor's election to the President of the President of the President of the President of the Democrats came in, and in the party were some ladies. "There's the President," said one good-natured ruralist, pointing to Mr. Cummins. Up he went, and grasping Mr. Cummins by the hand, quickly said: "Glad to see you, Mr. President. Allow me to introduce you to —," and the whole party shook hands before Mr. Cummins could get in one-eighth of a word that he was not the President.

Then one of the party rattled off "the hope he would make a good President." "he had voted for him," and that "he would annihilate the Indians." Again Mr. Cummins attempted to explain that he was some other fellow, but one Schoharie Democrat capped the climax by asking plumply for a post office. This staggered the genial Cummins, and he broke in with: "Tll talk to you about Governmental policies, but as for giving out offices. alow me to introduce you to President-elect Cleveland," who just then entered the room. This was the time the whole party of Schoharie people staggered—so much so that the man who wanted the post office forgot all about it, and the part left the room as quickly as possible. Mr. Cummins told the incident to Mr. Cleveland. For a moment he was silent. Then he leaned over, and said smilingly: "How would it do for you to stay here daily as my proxy?"

From the Lincoln (Neb.) Journal.

A Lincoln commercial traveler, who was glancing over a paper on the Omaha train yesterday, threw it down impatiently with the remark: "That's nothing; I don't see why any fuss is made about it."

"What is it?" asked a man near him.

"Oh, I see a statement that Prof. Riley has donated 22,000 bugs to the Government Museum. The hotel I stopped in at Omaha last night can double that and never miss a bug."

LEGAL TENDER EQUITY.

The proposition to suspend for the present the further coinage of silver dollars is merely precautionary and urged on grounds that are purely prudential. It is simply that we shall do as Germany and the nations of the Latin Union have done, by discontinuing for the present the coining of full legal-tender silver, without discrediting or demonetizing what we have already coined. The object is not to outlaw the latter or destroy its legal-tender power, but to keep it in use and circulation at par with gold coins, and to protect it from the efforts of foreign nations to divorce it from gold.

But, instead of discussing the policy of such suspension on its own merits, a maheated street jority of the public journals in the East persist in denouncing the silver dollar as a fraud which must be outlawed and wiped out of existence in order to save the nation from impending dishonor and disaster. as City hoists | The Philadelphia Record, for instance, usually fair and discreet in handling other questions, is now indulging in such wild screeds as this:

Other considerations apply to the case of those who hold a few of our bonds in foreign lands where none of our coin is a bulk was on its reassage. The entire country foreign lands where none of our coin is a bill was on its passage. The entire country legal tender and where its bullion value is was thrown into a financial spasm because certain thick headed bank presidents feared legal tender and where its bullion value is the measure of the payment. But for the home bondholder this Supreme Court decision puts the whole equity of the thing in a nutshell. The purchasing power, the paying power of the money at home where he wants to use it, is all that concerns the home creditor—unless he has a specific contract or some valid claim to be favored above his fellow-citizens and to be difficulties of

The sure of the law concerning the appointment of minority Civil Service Commissioners, naturally gives dissatisfaction to the Republican Senators. The act designs in such cases to give the minority party Ar representation. Republican Presidents of pains to carry out its letter and spirit by consulting the Democrate, in regard to such appointments. Mr. Cleveland not only ignores the Republicans, but chooses men as Republicans who are recommended by Democrate. Rejections in such cases would be entirely warranted, of course. This method of choosing Republicans is the one followed in the Southern States in giving the party representation on election boards. It generally turns out that the alleged Republican is the most serviceable Democrat on such boards. Perhaps the President has acted without knowledge of the precedents. If so, his sense of fairness ought to lead him to change his methods."

Judge Launtz feels very sore over the turn matters have taken, and has little hope of the Council, in virtually abolishing the court by refusing to make a sufficient appropriation to defray expenses, was much to be condemned, as the City Court will necessitate the taking of all East St. Louis cases up to Belleville.

Notwithstanding the severe cold weather, business at the National Stock Yards is booming. Yesterday over sixty car loads of stock were received.

In the City Court yesterday afternoon Lewis Ferringer, who sued Lewis Lohman for $2,000 for assault and battery, obtained a verdict of $500.

De Lisle is a farmer, residing ten miles south of this city. On Saturday his son Louis came to town to do trading. In the evening he started home. When some distance from here his team took fright and ran away, throwing DeLisle out. He got up, gave chase and caught the team in a snow-drift three miles from the city. He extricated them and while hitching up they started, throwing him down. One wheel passed over his breast. He again gave chase but he soon fell exhausted from his inturies. The mule team finally reached home. Mr. DeLisie and party hastened in search of his son. The search continued all night. Sunday Louis was discovered near Willow Slough Bridge, both hands holding to a barb wire fence, his arms frozen stiff. He was in a tracelline position both legs frozen and could form the suspensition of the suspensition position both legs frozen and could form the suspensition of the susp up they started, throwing him down. Winston J. Davie, was called up this afternoon in Judge Horner's Court. The parties were married February 14, 1861, and in October. 1878, Mrs. Davie alleges that her husband deserted her without cause. The husband enserted her without cause. The husband entered a general denial. Depositions taken at Louisville, Ky., were read in support of the unifers of the support of the wife's petition. Miss Marie Murray of Louisville testified that she had resided for some years with the Davie family, and observed that Mrs. Davie always treated her husband with kindness and affection, but that he did not manifest any disposition to support her. Miss Nellie Field of Jeffersonville, Ind., testified that she had occasion to observe the conduct of Mrs. Davie, her cousin, and her treatment of her husband was always affectionate. Mr. Davie went away of his own ac-

Drink and Dissipation Maria Kuebler wants a decree of divorce from Ludwig Kuebler. They were married in 1861 lved together until February 19 of last year. Mrs. Kuebler alleges that her husband took to drinking and abused her in every way, rendering her condition intolerable. He accused her wrongfully of unchastity in the presence of others, and frequently threatened to kill her. He remained away at intervals a week and a month at a time without assigning any reason for his absence. Mrs. Kuebler further alleges that her health suffered greaty in consequence of her husband's dissipated habits.

Court of Appeals.

The Court of Appeals met this morning and esumed the call of cases on the docket for the week The Court sits on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of each week, and if any ountry cases remain over on Thursday after-noon, the Court, for the convenience of coun-sel from a distance, will sit on Friday to com-plete the week's call.

B. C. Giles, on motion of T. W. B. Crews, and W. O. L. Jewett, on motion of J. N. Dry-den, were enrolled to-day in the Court of Ap-peals members of the bar.

This is the last week for filing new suits in the Circuit Court returnable to the approaching February term. The docket will be closed Controversy Between Stockholders.

A demurrer was entered to-day and submitted in Judge Lubke's court in the manmitted in Judge Lubke's court in the mandamus case of the State at the relation of Geo. S. Mepham against the South St. Louis Faint Manufacturing Company, Wm. G. Mepham and Chas. D. Stevens. This matter relates to a dispute between the majority and minority stockholders, each contending for the upper hand. Mr. Geo. S. Mepham owns thirty-three shares of the capital stock of the caint company, and he sought to compel the pompany to issue five certificates or the stock on the surrender of the certificate originally issued. He complained that the company refused to do so. The answer denied that any cause for a writ of mandamus had been shown.

SILVER COINAGE

NO CHANCE FOR ITS SUSPENSION B. THE PRESENT CONGRESS.

All Agitation Without Avail-Eastern F. nanciers Doomed to Disappointment.
Chances of a Free Coinage Bill Being

By Telegraph to the Post-DISPATCH. WASHINGTON, D. C., January 12.—There is age by the present Congress. It is useless to from that State who will vote against suspension.

3. The sentiment is also divided in the four great Middle States—Onio, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri. Ohio is certainly closely akin to the East in her commercial, industrial and educational development; yet there are among her representatives both Democrats and Republicans who are against the suspension of the present silver coinage. The feeling for silver grows stronger as one advances westward through Indiana and Illinois, and reaching Missouri, every one of the fourteen Representatives and two Senators is found arrayed against suspension and many of them ADVOCATE UNLIMITED COINAGE.

4. There is probably not a Republican member from Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, Colorada, Nevada, Oregon or California, who is not a silverman. One of the leaders of the Republican minority, who knows the men well, assures me positively that such is the case. The Democracy west of the Mississippi is absolutely solid in favor of the silver dollar.

5. A careful canvass of the House fully justifies these statements, and leaves no reasonable doubt that about one-third of the Republican members with at least two-thirds of the Democratic members will yout against suspension, having a majority of at least sixty votes against suspension, having a majority of at least sixty votes against suspension.

6. The situation in the Senate is not very different. Mr. Evants appears to be on the fence, if not already committed against suspension. Mr. Sherman also is believed to be uncertain as to his course. The Republican Senators from Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, California, Colorado and Nevada are solid against suspension, and there are strong indications that Logan and Culiom of Illinois, and several of the Republican Senators from Michigan and Wisconsin will side with westerday in the Circuit Court, seeking a decree of divorce from Mary A. Kirby. They were married April 21, 1873, and lived together until June 28, 1881. Mr. Kirby alleges that his wife made a practice of remaining out all night, offering no explanation for her absence. At other times she remained out until 16 and 12 o'clock of a night in the company of various with such which the manufacture and the such as the men. He further alleges that is supersion. In the Senate Finance Conmittee is said by anti-silver Senators to be either against them or to be least doubtful. 7. The sliver question is not a party question. Neither party is united upon it. A Demoration of the meals. There were no children.

Forsaken.

The divorce case

tion. Neither party is united upon it. A Dem vocratic administration strongly advocates sust pension. Two-thirds of the Democratic Representatives and Senators are as strongly opposed to it. The Republicans are also clearly divided. Nor, as I have said, is it, strictly spearing, a sectional question. Only eight Saa and most of those comparatively small entering the northeast corner of the country, are pronounced in their opposition to silver, while of the thirty other States, constituting the greater part of the country, some are divided on the question, but most of them strongly in favor of silver. This widespread silver feeling is largely the outgrowth of a prejudice or suspicion that the money centers it is far from probable that during the present session of Congress there will be any change in the law regarding the coinage of silver.

SHEBMAN SAFE.

The Nine Hamilton County Democratic Members Unseated This Morning. COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 12.—The Committee on Privileges and Elections of the House of Representatives this morning reported the resolution to unseat the Democratic members from Hamilton County. The cratic members from Hamilton County. The resolution was amended, providing for a hearing to be accorded the unseated members. The resolution was adopted under the previous question. The seats were then declared vacant amid the greatest confusion, in the midst of a howling mob. The nine Republican members came forward and were sworn in by the Speaker and were cheered by the Republicans and jeered by the Democrats. The Speaker ordered the Democratic members to turn over the keys to their desks. The action of to-day is ample assurance for the election of Sherman and will give him twenty-one majority on joint ballott in the convention of the two bodies.

KILLED BY MISTAKE.

MILES STANTON RECEIVES THE BULLETS INTENDED FOR ANOTHER MAN.

Sixth and Clark Avenue-The Desperate Manner in Which Mike Gilmore Tried to north on Sixth street, but was captured in a few minutes.

The prisoner was seen in the calaboose by a Post-Disparch reporter to-day. He is a low-sized, rather sturdily-built man of about 33, dark complexioned and not bad-looking, although presenting the appearance of being a trifle down in the heel, and of having been on a spree the night before. He said:

"I expect I am in a bad box, but it can't be helped now and I am very sorry for it. If it had only been the man I wanted to kill I wouldn't be feeling so bad. It was all about some money that Mooney owed me. He borrowed it from me Thanksgiving before last. We were and he got broke and I lent him a five-dollarbill. I often asked him to return it to me, but, beyond throwing me a dollar one time, he never made any attempt to pay me, although I often knew he had it. Last night I was with Hugh Dougherty and Jim Scott and some others over at Howard's, and when they closed up there we went to Lahsy's. Here we met Mooney, and after a while I asked him to let me have some money. He said he didn't have it, and I toid him he did. He then snapped his fingers at me and allowed that he would not pay me anyhow, saying that he did not know that he owed me any money. I then pulled out my revolver and let him have it. It was a seven-shooter, and I emptled all the barrels before I stopped firing. I don't remember seeing the deceased, but I expect he must have got in the way somehow and been shot accidentally. Maybe he started to interfere in Mooney's behalf. I don't know whether he did."

"Never saw him until he was riding along in the hoodium with me to the Four Courts. I feel real bad about him. Did I hit the other efellow?"

"Yes, once in the leg and once in the foot."

"I should have put all seven balls into Mooney instead of one into that poor fellow. Well, I expect I am in a bad fix, but it couldn't be helped. It was pure accident."

"OFFICER HAMETT, who made the arrest with Officer Carr, state that they caught the prisoner as he was running north on the east side of Sixth street, near Market, about five minutes after the shooting. He said: "The prisoner did not have much to say, except that he was sorry he killed Stanton, and that he intended to kill Mooney, He did not appear to be drunk, and submitted to arrest quietly. The pistol we took from him was a British bull-dog seven-shooter of calibre 33. When I asked him what caused the fuss, he said: I tried to collect a debt from Mooney, and when he wouldn't pay me, I drew on him to kill the ———." He said that he was working as a clerk for John Walden."

THE DECEASED.

Stanton is lying at the Morgue this morning. He is a man of about 33 years of age, of medium size, well built and of respectable appearance. He was engaged as night hostier at the bridge round-house on Poplar street near Seventeenth street. A companion of his, who called to see him at the Morgue, said this morning that he went with him last night to the theater, and that at about 1 o'clock he separated from him, saying that he was going that he was going that he was going and that he intended to have a good time of it. The young man stated that Stanton was a single man and lived on Walnut street near. Twenty-first street. He was a man of sterling qualities and much liked by his associates, to whom the news of his death had proved a bertified and the first of the clerk at the first of the discourse at any point. This morning Mr. Kelly received a telegram from William Kelly received a telegram from William Miller, Secretary of the Kansas City Board of Trade, to the effect that Kansas City would meet St. Louis at Jefferson City. The merchants of the other cities mentioned will be communicated with and in all probability delegations from all the Missouri River points in question will convene at the State Capitol on Friday next. The object of the meeting is to prepare a proposition for the readjustment of rates on a 60 per cent basis, which will remove the discrimination in favor of Chicago to points in the Southwest. The discussion will take place in presence of the Railroad Commissioners, and as all the leading merchants of the points affected by the discrimination are vitally interested, a large and interesting meeting is anticipated. flames had gained a considerable headway, which was the case before the first

New York, January H.—Reports continue to come in from up and down the coast of disasters to small sailing craft engaged in the costing trade. The Herald this morning prints the following: "The schooner Seabtrof, age. Haskell, of Elisworth, Maine, which cleared on Thursday with a load of pig trom, bound from New York to Boston, was wrecked off Gull Island, Long Island Sound, on Saturday morning during a biinding snow storm. The captain and the crew, which consisted of a copk and four seamen, were rescued by a farmer named Corwin, and landed in safety at Fresh Ponds, a small settlement near Baiting Hollow. The rescue demen had a thrilling experience and at one time had given up all hope. The first two days of the voyage were inventful, the sea being as smooth as glass. On Friday night, when off Gull Island, a blinding anow storm, accompanied by a northwest of their duties. The wind, which had increased in velocity, whisted through the sails and tumble the frightened sallors about the decks. Toward morning the men who had been on duty all night went below to get some food. To THEIR HORROR to twast discovered that the ship had sprung a lark, and that the water was rushing into the hold at a frightful rate. Again the men went on deck and the unequal struggle between human and addreance and the angry elements was renewed. All set to work bailing out the ship. Forty tons of pig iron were thrown overboard, and an attempt was made to anchor the vest school at a frightful rate. Again the men went on deck and the unequal struggle between human and another broke the rouder. There is an unusually large demand just now for county bonds on Third street. Every broker has his books fall of orders, and there is seems to be no prospect of filling them. As soon as a block of county bonds is thrown on the market it is grabbed up and buyers are in held by rich men and for the excellent reason that they are the best paying paper on the market.

At its meeting yesterday the Board of Directors of the Exchange considered the application of nearly every employe of the Exchange for an increase of salary. The boys took advantage of the new Board's softness of heart and they will very probably gain their desired object. The reappointment of Isaac Smythe as floorwalker was laid over.

No person should ever be allowed admittance, except such as were connected with the establishment or especially interested with its workings, and then only with the consent of the director. It looks as if you were all going mad over there as well as here in Europe. People are flocking here daily bitten by all kinds of dogs, until there is no room or time to treat them. Not every dog that bites is mad, by any means. M. Pasteur suggests that the authorities should make arrangements to have all such dogs caged and then if really rabid when biting, they will certainly die of unmistakable symptoms within ten days, which will allow time enough to be satisfied as to the dangers of the persons bitten and send them to him. He is perfectly willing to treat genuine cases free of charge, but it is seriously interfering with his work to have unnecessary persons sent here, and it is an imposition on good nature, especially as common sense and a clear head, can control such cases. No dog biting a person should be killed if it can possibly be caught. A large, strong salt bag with a strong netting inside, loosely stitched to the bag, which will entangle the dog, is the best thing to catch stray or suspicious curs. The open end of the bag should have a strong, hickory hoop attached to a short, strong handle, like a pot handle. The dog catcher should have a strong piece of clothes line to the behind the dog and between him and the hoop

This will probably be my last letter. The children are well; have been inoculated nine times to date. We expect to return by the Canada next Saturday. They have been out with their attendant this afternoon to visit an American lady, who does not want her name mentioned, and have come back with games, money, and stuff if full of cakesand candy. I is quite a picnic for them, as they see much of Paris. Sunday I sent them to the Jardin des Plantes, and they came back perfectly wild about bears, tigers, etc. We thank you all for your kind attention to our wants.

THE SILVER QUESTION.

ise Will Surely Be Arrived Atpecial Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch. Washington, D. C., January 9.-There is myself with the methods of M. Pasteur, his conveniences and surroundings. The children, more than one member of the Missouri delega-tion who is at heart opposed to the continu-ance of silver coinage, but there is not a memortable that I have been obliged to take them ber who would vote for its suspension. Thes to my hotel, the proprietor having assumed all responsibility for their good behavior, and weak-kneed representatives of the people know that their constituents favor continued procured a woman to have entire charge of coinage and they know that to uphold their own convictions with their votes would be hem and sleep in the room with them. I find that there are other sources from which M. Pasteur receives funds for his work, so that he has in all about 50,000 francs, but he is still obliged to sacrifice something from his own pocket. Aside from the buildings spoken of he has on an adjoining tract are confined in very str ng cages and may be seen in all stages of rabi s. Here also he man-own convictions with their votes would be political death. Although they cannot make a straightout fight against silver, however, their lukewarmness does considerable harm to the cause they are supposed to espouse. Moreover, if a strong feeling should develop for an experimental suspension, it is not so sure but that they would vote in its favor.

The feeling in favor of a compromise proposition appears to be growing. That feeling was voiced by three members of the Committee on Coinage, Weights and Measures, appointed two days ago. "Judge McCreary of kentucky expressed my views exactly when he said he believed some conclusion could be reached that would satisfy all parties concerned," said Mr. Bynum of Indiana, one of the committee. Mr. Little of Ohio is with these gentlemen. He is naturally in favor of continued silver coinage, but he places great confidence in the President and in his views on the subject, as expressed in his message. The influence of the Chief Executive's expressions indence in the President and in his views on the subject, as expressed in his message. The influence of the Chief Executive's expressions in favor of suspended coinage is being widely felt. There are a great many members of the House who feel that, so far as the world is concerned, they can just as easily agree with the Administration on this subject as fall out with it, and, as far as the President is concerned, that the former course would be greatly to their advantage. There are others, of course, who feel that the wishes of their constituents must be observed, if they expect further honors at their hands. To this latter class the Missourians belong.

this morning, has nothing to offer that is new except the following paragraph, which relates to the manner of their disappearance and the recent revelation:

"The couple, after rowing on the lake until dusk, landed safely on the pier at the foot of Thirty-nineth street. The craft was set adrift and the lovers walked to the Oakland station, boarded one of the Illinois Central suburban trains, and rode down town. Arriving at the Michigan Central depot they took the night train and in a few hours were at Detroit, Mich. They obtained rooms at a hotel, but as O'Rourke was short of money, they subsequently moved into cheaplodgings in a modest part of the city. As O Rourke's purse was rapidly becoming empty he began to look around for employment. Finally he found work as porter in a dry-goods store on a small salary. Miss Larned kept house, and under an assumed name they lived together in one room as man and wife for nearly four months. Tiring finally of the result of his netarious intrigue with Miss Larned, O'Rourke indited an anonymous letter in a disguised handwriting to his deserted wife. The letter stated that her nusband and Miss Larned were living in Detroit. When Mrs. O'Rourke received the epistle she immediately communicated with the betrayed girl's father. The poor girl was only too happy to return to the sheiter of her parents home, even though a cloud did hang over it. The officer confronted the girl when O'Rourke was absent, and she was taken to Windsor, Canda, to await the arrival of her father. Before leaving their quondam home she left a note for O Rourke, stating her intention of returning home. The sorrowful father found his daugnter at Windsor, and Saturday, January 2, they arrived at Chicago, and the girl is again under the care of ner mother. O Rourke on returning to his rooms found that his paramour had flown. The socundred was not a little tired of his malodorous escapade, and, upon receiving a letter from the wife he so cruelly deserted saying that she would forgive him, he took the train for M whereabouts of O'Rourke.
